

Since I signed up for do not call, I rarely receive unwanted calls. I like it that way, and I don't want it changed. I would NEVER buy anything from anyone who solicited me by phone or uninvited at my front door. If I wanted what they were selling, I still would buy it from someone else. I hang up on ALL unwanted phone calls, including the political calls that got through before the recent elections. It is an invasion of my privacy to be bothered at my home. This society is stressful enough at work, and in traffic, and in everyday social situations. When I go home at night if I choose to spend it in solitude that is my right, and I highly resent anyone who interrupts me. I believe this right falls under, "the pursuit of happiness." I'm NOT happy answering unwanted phone calls. Why would a company even want to place a phone call to someone who has made it clear by signing a "Do not call list," that they don't want to be called? Do they think we were only kidding? Do they think we are so stupid we didn't understand what we were doing? They are the stupid ones, since they don't seem to believe what we have made very very clear. DO NOT MESS WITH INDIANA'S DO NOT CALL LIST. WE DON'T NEED THE FEDERAL GOVERNMENT TINKERING WITH SOMETHING THAT IS WORKING QUITE WELL. You might pass on to the politicians that all those vote solicitation calls didn't win them any friends. If this is the wave of the future, anyone who leaves these messages on my answering machine will LOOSE my vote.
